NUM KHOX RAPS MARTIN.

Intimates There Is Crooked ness in the Police Helmet Contract.

SPELLMAN GETS THE ORDERS.

He Charges $2.25, Although Knox's Regular Price Is and Has Been $2.

SHABBILY,

Knex Says He Paid Barney Martin's Campaign Expenses and Political Assessments.

With the threats of ex-Police Capt Doherty ringing in his ears, and with public opinion focused upon him in a uncomfortable manner, Police Commissioner James J. Martin is called this morning to answer another and unlooked for charge. The com-plainant in this case is Knox, the Broadway hatter, who declares that through Martin's agency he lost the contract for supplying the patrolmen with helmets, a contract which he had enjoyed for years, and who supplied helmets which no one ever objected to until James J, Martin became a Po-lice Commissioner.

antil James J. Martin became a Poce Commissioner.
What the public and the patrolmen
re particularly interested in, however, that J. H. Spellman, who now supplies he helmets to the Department, charges cents more for each article than Knox ad been in the habit of charging, and a ke amount more than he is willing to knowly them for at the present time.
Twenty-five cents additional for each at does not seem very much to look at, but when it is remembered that the parolmen wear out from four to five and ix helmets a year, and that about 30,000
re purchasel every year, it vill be seen that the men are actually saying $7,500 more for hats every year
han they formerly paid.
What makes Mr. Knox particularly ngry is that he regards the whole affair s the rankest kind of ingratitude. In he first place, he blames Mr. Martin for verything, and has hired Lawyer Louis
. Grant to get the facts before the ourts. In the next place, he claims the redit of having taken "Barney" Marin, brother of the Folice Commissioner, rom the depths of obscurity and given in his first start in politics. He claims

ment of $3,500 when the same individua

Later, that he paid his political assessment of $3,500 when the same individual got the nomination for Coroner; that he paid the funeral expenses when his first wife died; that "Jimmy" Martin swore to be his friend through life; that he has not been able to collect from "Barney," now Police Justice Bernard J. Martin, ever since and that generally he is a much-abused man.

The story of the change in contractors for supplying helmets, which Mr. Knox tells, and which an examination of the police records bears out, is interesting. For years Knox supplied them to the finest at $2 each, and he admits having made a fair profit at that. Then James J. Martin loomed upon the scene as a Commissioner, and a great change came over the scene.

Until Mr. Martin's arrival at the Mulberry street building it had been the habit whenever the time came around for giving out the contracts to advertise for bids. Mr. Knox goes further and says that every hatter in town was notified beforehand in order that they could get ready and send in samples. With James J. Martin's appointment as Commissioner, however, according to Mr. Knox's story, all this ceased.

At the corner of Park How and New Chambers street J. H. Spellman keeps a hat store. It may be that he has a hat factory somewhere, but until the present time few persons seems to have been aware of its existence. The hat store adjoins the liquor store which Patrick Divver—now Police Justice—kept for years.

It is a well-known fact that Divver and Stellman were and are fast' friends.

Patrick Divver—now Police Justice—kept for years.

It is a well-known fact that Divver s.d Spellman were and are fast friends. Spellman is a member of Divver's Association. Over his store are the offices of Herman Boile, one of Divver's litutenants, who was elected Civil Justice last Fall. This is the Spellman who now supplies the helmets to the Police Department.

When, after Martin's admission to the Police Board, the time came around for the giving out of the contracts for helmets. Mr. Knox says he put in a bid at the old rate of $2$ in spite of the fact that the contracts had not been advertised. He was surprised later to find

t the contracts had not been adver-d. He was surprised later to find t Spellman was the successful bidder, stranger still that his price was $2.25 and stranger still that his price was seen per hat.

It was then that Mr. Knox began to think, and think pretty hard at that, but he was powerless to do anything. He says now that he called on James J. Martin several times to ask what it all meant, but not no satisfaction. Next year, although the contracts were not advertised, Mr. Knox put in his bid, as of old, for $2 per hat. It was a waste of time, however, as Spellman again got the contract at the old rate of $2.25. He has enjoyed the contract ever since.

ever since. When Commissioner Martin arrived at

When Commissioner Martin arrived at Headquarters this morning, and was questioned, he refused to say anything to the newspaper men present, beyond asking them if they had gone into the hat business.

"This whole story is silly," he added, "and I am not going to discuss it at all." Then he walked upstairs, and being joined by Commissioners Kerwin and Murray, proceeded to hear the complaints against policemen in the trial room.

From Major Kipp, Clerk of the Board, it was ascertained that it has not been the practice to advertise nor to let out hat contracts. It was stated that the Commissioners did not handle a dollar of the money; they simply peased upon the quality of the heimels offered. They had decided that the Spellman hat was the best. It was claimed that the only privilege he had was the use of the hatroom. He delivered his hats at Police Headquarters and sold them to the menthers.

The trouble began a year ago. Just in the middle of the block, at 17 Madison street, Mrs. L. Koransky, a midwife, lives with her husband, Charles; her daughter, Hester; her son, Aaron, who is a medical student, and their boarder, Ida Kehler, a Russian girl, eighteen years old.

Old men love the stoop, and go there to sit beside their wives. Sick children stop crying if they can get a seat there, and young men consider the stoop the only spot in the street to talk of the loys of married life with the girls of their choice.

The Koranskys stood the noisy gatherings as long as they could, and then decided to put an end to them. To do this they kept a constant stream of water from a hose playing on the steps during the entire evening. This kept the stoop chear, but made he neighbors angry. They stood about in little groups and said hard things about the Koranskys. It didn't need much to have them break into open revolt.

That little came one day when some of the running water was sprinkled on Mrs. Dora Goldberg, who lives next door at 175. From that time on the Koranskys had a hard time getting into their house. They were met and threatened with assault. The space before their house was crowded so that they could not go in or out, their windows were broken and their front door was nalled up.

Exactly how last night's serious trouble commenced the police would like to know, but it is not difficult to guess. The struggling, fighting gathering seemed to come together by magic.

Roundsman Frank Murtha was standing at Rutgers street and Policeman Andrew McCarthy at Pike street, when all at once the Madison street block was jammed with the howing people. This morning she is in Bellevue Hospital a prisoner, suffering seriously as the result of a dose of Paris green.

Mrs. Markoff is a Russian, and has ived with her husband in the Sheriff street house for six weeks. She is a poetess, and of a melancholy disposition, laboring under the hallucination that she was about to die of consumpthat she was about to die of consumption. It is said that she had a touch of the disease, but the doctors told her she could be cured.

Still she worried, and refused to be comforted. She would dwell on the horrors of death as she talked to her husband, and said she knew she must soon die.

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Markoff went out and bought Paris green and awallowed it before she came home. Mrs. Kosnovitch, with whom the Markoffs itved, found her ill last night. She silved, found her ill last night. She silved, found her ill last night. She silved, found her ill last night she silved, found her ill last night. She silved, found her ill last night she silved. The husband believes that the poison was taken with sulcidal intent.

Mrs. Kosnovitch said this morning that Mrs. Markoff was educated in some of the best seminaries in Russia.

"She was reading all the time," said the landlady, "and complained that she was not satisfied with her station in life."
